Helen Keller wrote, “The greatest tragedy in life is people who have sight but no vision.” An anonymous writer noted, “If you have sight, you are blessed. If you have insight, you are a thousand times blessed.” Peter Drucker wrote, “The best way to predict the future is to create it.”

All of these quotes characterize the staff and leadership of Prestera. They have shown great vision in preparing Prestera for future years, demonstrated outstanding insight into the needs of its consumers and shown creatively by developing innovative methods and obtaining resources to serve consumers more effectively. They are creating the future for Prestera.

The Prestera mission is known to all staff and board members, whether or not they can recite it word for word. Their attitudes and actions verify their understanding. That mission statement is, “A United Effort Dedicated to Helping People Achieve Their Full Potential.” This mission is evident in the operation of established programs and in the constant innovation of new ones. The year 2010 has seen administration and staff improve the efficiency and effectiveness of programs carried on from previous years. Work has been directed at providing better service to consumers and doing so in the most cost effective manner. A very significant and challenging effort has been made to implement an entirely new computer system that brings the agency up to date with electronic capabilities. The agency has assumed greater responsibility for direct services in Charleston, opened new facilities and expanded programs. It has also made a major real estate purchase, and several smaller ones which will revolutionize the provision of service capabilities by Prestera staff. The purchase and renovation of the former Stone Lodge into a site to provide all addictions treatment services in one location is very challenging and exciting. Add to those accomplishments a number of innovative projects funded by grants sought by staff and it becomes very clear that the mission is being fulfilled step by step.

Make no mistake, there are many challenges on the horizon, but we believe Prestera is capable of adjusting and overcoming them. Quoting Helen Keller again, “No pessimist ever discovered the secrets of the stars, or sailed to an uncharted land or opened a new heaven to the human spirit.” We are not Pollyannaish, but are optimistic about Prestera and its capabilities to serve the people of Boone, Cabell, Clay, Kanawha, Lincoln, Mason, Putnam, and Wayne counties with accessible, appropriate and affordable mental health and addiction services in the years to come. Maybe we can even help “open a new heaven to the human spirit.”

The Board of Prestera Center feels fortunate to represent an administration and staff that are so competent and motivated and the consumers who so desperately need the services they provide. We take our role very seriously and will continue to work diligently to assure the organization has effective leadership, to enable ideas to be implemented and to see that sufficient resources are made available. In that manner, we hope to justify our privileged association with the people of Prestera.

David W. Forinash
President, Board of Directors
Prestera Center for Mental Health Services, Inc.
The past year was quite monumental for Prestera Center. The Board of Directors and Executive staff made several decisions which will affect our agency for many years to come. These decisions were based on our unwavering commitment to our mission and making sound investments for the future.

One of these decisions was to purchase a new software system to be implemented agency-wide this past January. This decision was not made lightly and required an extensive evaluation process. As with any change, the implementation process was not flawless, but I am completely confident this is a solid investment for Prestera Center. We will be able to see vast improvements within our organization, which will ultimately have a very positive effect for our consumers.

The other immense decision facing Prestera this year was the purchase of a new facility for our addictions treatment programs. A few years ago, we learned from our consumers during a public hearing that they take pride in our services and are thankful for our assistance. They felt, however, that we needed to provide an environment more focused on recovery. Because of those compelling testimonies and the need to be more responsive to our community, our Board of Directors decided to purchase the former Stone Lodge facility in Barboursville. Now, as we work through the many steps to get the facility ready, I continue to feel this is the best option for our organization.

The long term impact of the purchase of the Stone Lodge, and the consolidation and expansion of our addictions treatment programs, will be unknown for a few years. However, I am positive that we will look back upon this time with pride in the decisions that were made.

These changes allow us to set the stage for supporting our staff, as well as serving our consumers in all ways needed.

Looking forward, health care reform, increased state regulatory interventions, and the need for continued accountability are obstacles looming in our horizon. The important decisions we made last fiscal year will serve us well to face the many challenges of the future.

In early spring 2011, Prestera Center will be making a big move to the newly renovated Stone Lodge facility. The Stone Lodge Project, as it has been called, is a significant event in the life of Prestera Center for Mental Health Services. Never before has our organization taken the step to purchase and renovate such a facility. This step was taken for many reasons, but the most compelling is to expand and improve our addictions treatment capacity.

West Virginia is facing increasing pressures related to addictions. Prescription drug abuse has become a common theme throughout our State. At the same time, the resources that have been available to be aggressive in treating people who are ready for help have not kept pace with the demand. In fact, the financial resources available have slowly declined.

Prestera Center’s Board of Directors took a stand. They made a huge financial commitment to purchase the Stone Lodge facility in Barboursville and convert it for our substance abuse programs. This is a bold statement to the community and to West Virginia. We are serious about reaching out to our citizens. The Stone Lodge campus will enable Prestera Center to increase its capacity by 300%. This is being done without an increase in revenue from our major funding sources.

This project will have a long lasting and positive impact in helping our neighbors who suffer from addiction. They will be able to move forward on the road to recovery and become productive citizens of our community. Prestera Center is looking forward to this milestone in our organization’s long history of serving West Virginians.

Paying It Forward

Recovery from a mental illness or a co-occurring disorder can be a difficult and lonely journey. Many people are left friendless, homeless and penniless as a result of their experiences. Recovery is not just about reducing symptoms, but involves living as full a life as possible.

In addition to counseling by doctors and therapists, time spent with peers to talk, listen, and share experiences can make a positive impact. Talking with a peer, not only when feeling well, but also when experiencing difficulties, can make a big difference in one’s recovery. Peer support connects those in recovery with others who have been there and experienced similar difficulties. Peers can help by engaging in a mutual relationship which explores strategies that have worked in their own recovery journey.

Prestera’s Peer Support Specialist Program

The Prestera Peer Support Specialist class is based on the WRAP concept. Focusing on self-help, The Wellness Recovery Action Planning is a group taught by consumers for consumers who are interested in learning safe and helpful techniques to move forward in recovery. Developed by Mary Ellen Copeland, a consumer, author, and educator, this program focuses on personal strategies for staying well, along with an action plan of what to do should difficulties occur. In addition, a variety of recovery topics are provided including: self-esteem, trauma recovery, and changing negative thoughts to positive ones.

The group meets once a week for eight weeks while working on WRAP techniques, as well as learning to share one’s life story. Additionally, participants learn about Prestera Center and employment procedures and training. Many Peer Support graduates move on to work at Prestera or other local agencies, helping others on their road to recovery. Each class celebrates completion of the course with a graduation ceremony, inviting friends and family to share in their success.

What is Peer Support?

Peer support is based on the belief that people who have faced and overcome the adversity and stigma of a mental illness or co-occurring disorder can offer support to others facing the same difficulties. In the past, many consumers of mental health services saw themselves as their illness. Now, the recovery movement challenges them to think about how they can determine the course in their own lives by being able to take risks, use personal responsibility in recovery, and fully participate in the community. This results in more support, hope and better choices when a consumer does experiences difficulties.

Jessica Rediscovers Her Hope

Thirty-year-old Jessica is a true Prestera success story. From consumer to employee, Jessica has shown it is possible to overcome addiction and live a fulfilling life.

Jessica began experimenting with alcohol and marijuana at the age of 17. When she turned 20 years old, she began working at a sports bar where she was introduced to cocaine, ecstasy, ketamine, crack and hard liquor.

“I partied for about three years then moved to Charleston from Mingo County and started doing crystal meth on top of everything else,” Jessica said.

In early 2005, Jessica found out she was pregnant and immediately quit doing drugs.

“I was able to put the drugs down when I wanted to,” Jessica said. “I didn’t think that I had an issue.”

After the birth of her daughter, Jessica began having pain in her face. She made countless trips to emergency rooms, doctors and dentists, but they weren’t able to tell her what was wrong and continued to prescribe pain medication.

“After a year with the pain, my daughter’s pediatrician recommended I should go see a neurologist, so I did,” Jessica said. “I found out that I have trigeminal neuralgia, which occurs when the three nerves on the sides of your face are constantly having seizures.”

By the time she found out what was causing her pain, Jessica was already addicted to the pain medications.

In November 2008, Jessica decided to seek help by checking into an inpatient clinic in Florida, but unfortunately she had to leave due to financial conflicts.

Jessica left Florida and came back to West Virginia where she became a consumer at Prestera’s Hopewell Place.

Hopewell Place is an intensive outpatient program designed for individuals to regain their lives through a holistic approach that focuses on emotional, physical and spiritual health.

“Hopewell helped me get through a mess of problems,” Jessica said. “My parents are proud of me and my daughter says I am the best mommy in the world.”

Jessica graduated from Hopewell in March 2010 and became a recovery coach for Prestera in May 2010.

“I feel that having been through the process makes me an easy person for consumers to talk to,” Jessica said.

Substance Abuse Services

Prestera strives to improve the quality of life and support for individuals who are chemically dependent or abusing alcohol and/or drugs. The focus of service is to assist the consumer in making measured improvements in maintaining a healthy lifestyle through counseling services and 12-step recovery support.

Paul came to Prestera Center in August 2007. Previously, Paul had been alternating stays between Sharpe Psychiatric Hospital and jail. As a new resident at one of Prestera’s group homes, he entered a new environment filled with changes and challenges. Paul not only adapted but excelled in this environment.

Now, Paul participates in our Community Focus Treatment Program five days a week. He is employed by Prestera’s Clean Sweep Janitorial Services and spends 15 hours a week cleaning at Prestera’s 8th Street and Day Treatment Facilities. If that is not enough, Paul takes care of the lawns for multiple Prestera sites in the summer. Paul can also be seen playing on Prestera’s softball team on Tuesday nights.

No matter what Paul is doing, he always approaches it with a smile and a positive outlook.

Paul credits Prestera as being life-changing for him. He states, “Through this program and those who run the program, I’ve learned how to take care of myself, my apartment and my belongings.”

Paul continues, “You could say I have learned to live a positive, responsible life and to be a part of this community.”

Paul has recently completed his stay at one of Prestera’s residential facilities and now resides in his own apartment in Huntington. Paul was voted Community Support Services Employee of the Month for March 2010 for his many staff compliments, great attitude and outstanding work ethic.

Mental Health Services

At Prestera Center, our professional staff provides a broad continuum of services to meet each individual’s emotional and mental health needs. Our services help people cope with everyday problems. We have specialized services that help to prevent hospitalization or to help transition back into everyday life after more intensive treatment options.
Sixteen-year-old Caitlyn joined Prestera’s Innerchange and mentoring programs in April. She decided to seek help after battling with a cocaine and pill addiction at the age of fifteen.

“It was very hard to quit,” Caitlyn said. “I overdosed a couple of times on pills and once in the bathroom at school.”

Caitlyn said her family influenced her to join the Innerchange Program.

“My family really tried to be there for me,” Caitlyn said. “My brother is my best friend and has stuck by me.”

As the oldest child in her family, Caitlyn said it was difficult to be around her five siblings while taking drugs.

“It was hard on them, especially my younger sister,” Caitlyn said. “She saw a lot she shouldn’t have seen and she didn’t want me to get into trouble.”

Caitlyn said employees of the Innerchange Program really have gone out of their way to make sure she receives the best treatment.

“They helped me learn how to do other things instead of drugs and made sure that I was okay,” Caitlyn said.

Caitlyn said in the future she plans to attend Marshall University.

“I would like to have a career working in a place like Prestera,” Caitlyn said.
Independence = Success

Two Prestera consumers impress colleagues with their hard work and dedication while on the job.

Charles was introduced to the WORCS Program in Boone County two years ago. The WORCS program is designed to provide everything needed to enable consumers with disabilities to work and live independently.

“Before I got a job, I looked forward to having one so I could buy things I wasn’t able to get before,” Charles said.

Charles does maintenance work such as cleaning parking lots and windows and restocking items at Wendy’s. His goal is to be promoted to a cashier or cook.

“I love every minute of my job and going to class,” Charles said.

Charles said he has a good life. He has one brother and sister and two stepsiblings. At home, Charles spends most of his time outdoors working in his yard. He enjoys going to the movies, downloading and listening to music and anything that relates to wrestling.

Linda Williams, a job coach at Prestera, said Charles is very meticulous about his job.

“You could not ask for a better person,” Williams said. “He is a great worker.”

Suann joined the Waiver Department in February 2010. Her job is to organize clothes at Goodwill three days a week.

“I have made a lot of new friends while working,” Suann said.

Suann’s favorite thing about her job is making money. She spends her money on items to help her sister around the house.

Suann’s supervisors said working at Goodwill has made a huge difference in her work and social skills.

When Suann isn’t hard at work, she enjoys going to church, coloring and doing math and spelling at Prestera on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Great job Charles and Suann!

Intellectual Disabilities

Prestera provides individuals diagnosed with Intellectual Disabilities and/or developmental delays the opportunities to receive certain services in a home and/or community-based setting for the purpose of attaining independence, personal growth, and community inclusion.

The program provides training in new skill areas in order to improve the quality of life and to enhance independence, serving adults 18 years or older. Services range from Day Habilitation to

Enabling Faster Access

Open Access is an initiative that allows Prestera Center to offer immediate intake services to those 18 and older who are seeking help without the requirement of an appointment. During Open Access, an initial assessment is completed and the new client will work with a Prestera employee to determine the next steps for treatment and a follow-up appointment will be made.

“When a person is ready to reach out for help, they should not have to wait several weeks for an appointment,” says Bob Hansen, Chief Executive Officer. “Now, anyone needing help can walk into any one of 11 different locations without an appointment and be seen by one of our professionals,” Hansen continues.

Prestera launched its first Open Access location over a year ago, and now each county is offering the program, as well as three locations specifically for substance abuse services. During the last year, nearly 5500 new clients were seen through Open Access at Prestera.

Yost Receives The 2010 Michael Prestera Award of Excellence

Karen Yost, the Director of Clinical Services at River Park Hospital, was the recipient of the 2010 Michael Prestera Award of Excellence. This prestigious award recognizes individuals whose contributions have resulted in improvements in mental health and/or substance abuse in Cabell, Mason, Lincoln, Wayne, Kanawha, Clay, Boone or Putnam counties. This marks the 14th year the award has been presented.

Yost has worked in the mental health and substance abuse field for over 30 years. Her nominator states, “Karen has impacted the lives of clients and their families by providing services, advocating for their needs, and working diligently on many state-wide committees to improve the delivery and availability of mental health and substance abuse services to the people of West Virginia.”

Additionally, Yost is dedicated to the continuing efforts of behavioral health students and professionals by teaching at Marshall University and conducting state-wide trainings on mental health and substance abuse. Yost was nominated by her colleagues at River Park Hospital, Lisa Kaplan and Terry Stephens. She was honored at Prestera’s Annual Board Meeting and benefit, A Magical Evening in March 2010.

The Prestera Foundation has carefully reviewed the names listed. If you find an error, please accept our apologies and contact our office at (304)414-3061 so we may correct our records. This list does not include the numerous in-kind gifts generously provided throughout the year to our various Prestera Center programs.
Fulfilling The Promise

For more than 40 years, Prestera Center has provided behavioral healthcare treatment for thousands of area residents. Prestera is the largest mental health and addictions services provider in the state, with over 50 locations throughout our eight county service area.

As the demand for services constantly increases, Prestera Center rises to the occasion by providing programs and services for those most in need. Over 90% of Prestera’s consumers fall below the poverty line. State funding is not nearly enough to offer effective services to the 18,000 children, adults, and families we serve each year.

The Prestera Foundation strives to support these necessary programs by raising private funds, and launched The Prestera Promise annual fund campaign in Fall 2009. We are grateful for the individuals, community organizations, and corporations who supported this effort.

This campaign enabled the Foundation to begin another initiative, the Prextera Foundation Grant Program, designed specifically to provide funding for Prestera Center programs and services on a consistent basis. We received an overwhelming response and were honored to provide funding for five projects that will enable our programs to better serve the community’s needs.

Among many other projects, contributions to The Prestera Promise enabled the Foundation to supply new equipment for two supportive employment programs, provide security upgrades and additional cameras for our Huntington crisis unit, and purchase audiovisual equipment for treatment programs in Mason County. Many of our consumers’ holidays were made a little brighter this past year thanks to the generosity of civic groups and individuals.

It is because of our donors that we are able to provide much needed funds for these deserving programs. We hope to expand the grant program in the future, and by becoming a part of The Prestera Promise, you can help us achieve our goal to serve everyone seeking help, regardless of their ability to pay.

Together, we can ensure the longevity of high quality services available to West Virginians. It’s never too late to make your commitment. Prestera is ready to put your generosity to work today saving lives and restoring hope to those in our community. If you would like to join us in making The Prestera Promise, please contact the Foundation office or return the enclosed pledge card.
